SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully, and in full sentences, answer the questions that follow

Most schools in Uganda hold their annual sports days in term one. During this term, there are a number of preparations which are done. The games and sports masters take charge of the entire exercise, supported by the house patrons of different houses. Among the different preparations, they register pupils suitable for different items and train them daily on an agreed timetable for at least one month before the actual sports day.

On the actual day of competitions, the games and sports master together with the house patrons, assemble the pupils in their respective camps. Whistles are blown from different corners of the field, putting most participants on tension.

The announcers take a lead role in calling participants for different items and alerting house patrons about the next items they should prepare their participants for. In one corner, there is a recording table where trusted teachers record points for participants according to their positions.

The officials who amuse me most are the starters who run almost everywhere as if they are participants as well. Equally amusing are the teachers who run round the field shouting names of the participants from their houses and promising them rewards if they win their opponents. As it always comes out, in each race there are winners and losers.

At the end, points are added, participants and their supporters assemble and congratulatory speeches are made. Finally, the chief guest of the day announces the results. The winners sing songs of victory as they run around the field with their trophy. The losers walk away quietly and wait for the following year to revenge.
