SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully and answer, in full sentences, the questions that follow.

Election of prefects is a yearly event in schools. Prefects play a big role. They help teachers to smoothly run the school.

In my school, Hillside Primary School, this election is held in second term, and recently, it was election week. The School Election Commission announced posts to be vied for. The notice was pinned on the school noticeboard. Interested pupils were encouraged to apply to the electoral body. Several application letters were carefully scrutinized by the electoral body and names of applicants found fit for the posts were listed and displayed on the noticeboard. This showed that they had been nominated or selected to contest for the respective posts.

Aspiring candidates designed posters to facilitate their campaigns. The campaigns got more interesting as various candidates promised to do various things once elected. Lito Bokie, one of the candidates vying for the post of Dining Prefect, promised to ask the school administration to include ice cream on the daily school menu. This particular promise made him very famous among the pupils. All throughout the campaigns, there was no case of bribery reported. The School Election Commission had strongly cautioned against bribery of any kind, and that any candidate who engaged in the vice would be discontinued from the election. They'd also warned against use of abusive language during the campaigns.

On polling day, pupils queued to cast their votes. They exercised their democratic right by voting candidates of their choice. Later in the day, vote counting took place and successful candidates were announced. As the victors celebrated their electoral victories, strong losers accepted defeat and congratulated their fellows on winning in the election. The victors were later sworn in at a colorful ceremony presided over by the area Member of Parliament. What a busy electoral season it was!

TRAFFIC JAM IN TOWN.

In town,
Vehicles travel from up country
They get into town
Others struggle
To get out of town
Some move within
All in town

The roads get crowded
With both vehicles and pedestrians
Both struggling for space
Space to help them move freely
Moving freely in town
Is as hard as walking a journey of thorns
Using the bare foot

At the junctions
The traffic lights and the traffic police
Playing a big role
The lights change colours
To give clear instructions
Red you stop, orange you get ready, green you go
The officers blow the whistles
They arrest and handcuff the law breakers
Let's all observe the Highway Code

Okello Mark
