- GOODBYE GRANNY
My loving maternal grandmother,
Collapsed unexpectedly,
News about her unexpected sickness,
Circulated to all my relatives,
Through phone messages it is circulated.
- Very worried my relatives became,
Hurried and rushed her to Mengo Hospital,
Without wasting time they did,
To save her dear life,
For she had got a heart attack.

On Tuesday, the following day,

The compound was filled with people,
My uncles, my aunties and my cousins,
To mourn the fallen granny
Who left fourteen mature children.

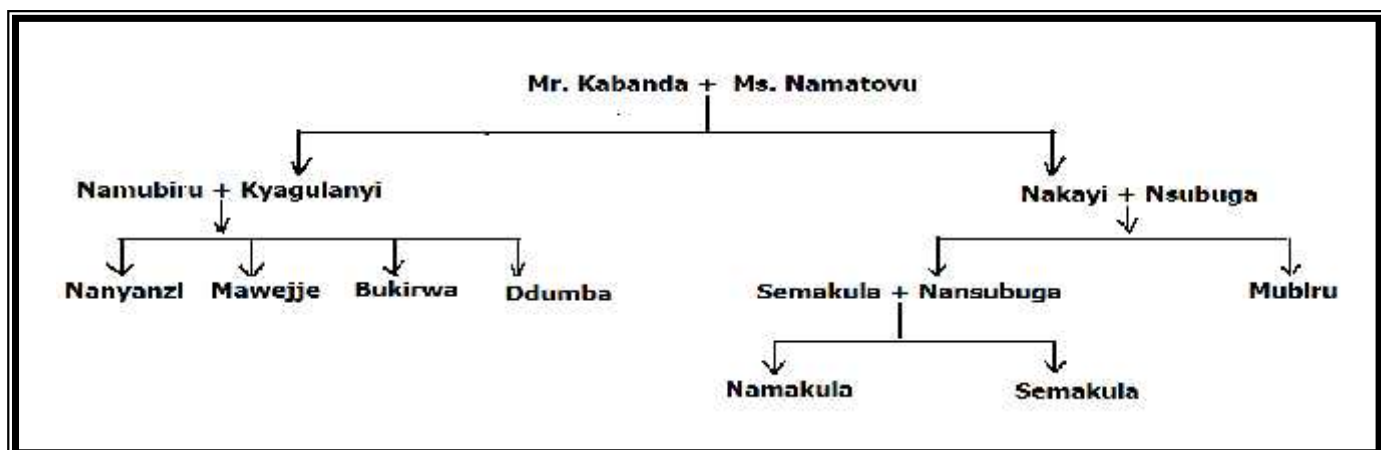

RIP Granny!

By Judith, P.7

54. The dialogue below is between Hannan and Abigail. Read it and complete the gaps with what you think were Abigail's responses.

Hannan: Congratulations on completing the term, Abigail.

Abigail:

Hannan: Have you made any holiday plan?

Abigail:

Hannan: What I mean: Do you have a programme for your holiday?

Abigail:

Hannan: That's good! Where have you planned to spend your holiday?

Abigail:

Hannan: At your uncle's place in Kaberamaido! Will you have completed the three sets of holiday work by the time you go to your uncle's place?

Abigail:

Hannan: You had better complete the holiday work first. And on top of that, since you are a candidate, you also need to make a timetable for your personal revision.

Abigail:

Hannan: You don't need it now because you have a lot of time left before you write your P.L.E.! My dear, when we return to school next term, we shall study for only one month to do our P.L.E. Sit here and we make the revision timetable together.

Abigail:

Hannan: Yes, I have already made mine.

Abigail:

Hannan: I gave English a lot of time because I still find it difficult.

Abigail:

Hannan: Yes, you can do the same for Mathematics.

Abigail: Thank you, my friend for the concern and help.
