It was bright Saturday morning when grandfather Bwedda woke up. "The sun is already up!" He exclaimed to himself. He jumped out of bed and drew the curtain of his bedroom window looking at the clock, he smiled to himself, Oh..., I am just in time I shall be ready before 10:00 o'clock."

He prayed, rushed to the bathroom, dressed up and had his breakfast. He looked at himself in the mirror and realised something was missing. He had not put on his lovely hat. He immediately reached for it up the wall where it hung and put it on his head. Still he felt not as honourable as he deserved. Something was still missing.

First, he remembered his walking stick. Yes, with it, he was the real Great Bwedda, son of Bwedda Ddala.

Before setting off, he wanted to be sure of the venue for the: national celebrations, he pulled out his diary. He checked and confirmed that 10/09/2023 was the Independence day, and the national celebrations were to be held at Kololo Airstrip. "I must be in time to shake hands with international dignitaries as it was last year."

He said to himself excitedly as he hurried through the door.

Outside he was disappointed to see his neighbours in the garden. "These people lack the spirit of nationalism. How do you go to the garden on a national independence day! I will not even speak to them," he said to himself.

As he continued to the city, everybody seemed to be minding their business. Grandfather Bwedda was getting more disappointed. "Not even a single flag hung in the city," he complained aloud. A young man near him heard and answered him that it was not necessary. He wondered how it would not be necessary when it was a National Day. "The Independence Day; he emphasized.

The young man told him that the National Independence Day falls 09/10 not as the day was. Grandfather Bwedda believed and blamed himself for not having read the date very well. More disappointed than ever, he returned home very tired and sad.
