He has three children, one boy and two girls. the girls wake up early in the morning at 5:00a.m to go and work in their father's restaurant as waitresses and their mother cooks the food. The boy walks all over the village looking for food that will be prepared in the restaurant the next day. In addition, this boy has to fetch water using a very old bicycle.

None of Ndifuna's children goes to school as they are fully in business.

Ndifuna gets a lot of profits from this restaurant because he does not have to pay the workers. Food like matooke, rice, meat, peas, beans and potatoes is sold. Juice is well prepared and most customers pop in for this good, fresh juice that is made from local fruits like pineapples, oranges and passion fruits. The price of food is determined by the sauce, then all the food of one's preference is provided. This is well illustrated on the menu, for example chicken stew eight thousand shillings, beans three thousand five hundred shillings, peas four thousand shillings and fish at ten thousand shillings. When one pays for the stew, he is free to choose any food. Juice is at seven hundred shillings a glass.

At Ndifuna's restaurant, food is well prepared and the place is really clean. Furthermore, the waitresses are very kind, well-disciplined and welcoming. This has made their business attract a lot of customers from near and far.

The customers are received from morning to evening and sometimes even at night. Heavy breakfast is served in the morning; katogo and tea and immediately after, the chef makes sure that lunch is also ready.

The most interesting thing in this restaurant is that one pays before being served. On the wall, there are instruction, "ORDER WITH CASH". The money is paid to the cashier who offers a receipt.
