SECTION B: 50 MARKS

Questions 51 to 55 carry ten marks each.

- 51. Read the passage below carefully and then answer, in full sentences, the questions that follow.

Andreas and I were with the goats high on the hillside. It was not raining, but there were thick clouds above us. It was getting colder and colder. After a while, the clouds seemed to be rolling down the hillside towards us and soon we were covered by a thick mist. I could no longer see the goats very clearly though I could hear them bleating. Andreas suddenly appeared out of the mist and asked, 'What are we going to do now?' 'Perhaps we could try and drive the goats back home.' I replied. However, he did not seem to listen to my reply even though he looked quite contented.

As we started down the hill, we could not see our way clearly, and so we tumbled over stones and rocks. The goats seemed to know the way better and walked home without having to be directed. Suddenly, I heard a cruel laugh above. I looked up in order to find out who it was but I was not able to see anything; the air had been covered with thick mist. I gathered just enough courage and asked, 'Who are you?' No voice spoke back. Then, just as I turned back to talk to Andreas, lightning flashed, and there behind him stood what seemed to be a smartly dressed woman. She didn't look to be harmful. 'What is your name?' I managed to ask. 'Never mind,' the stranger replied and immediately repeated the horrible laugh.

I gazed at her, terrified. I began to tremble and it was quite clear she was able to read my thoughts. She roared back with laughter. My instinct told me to flee, but before I could lift a foot, 'everything went black'. I woke up after I do not remember how long and found myself on a wooden bed in a small hut. I looked carefully round the hut to see if I had ever been anywhere near it. I could not remember ever having seen it. I tried to recall what had happened, but my memory failed me.

As I lay back on that bed calculating my chances of escape, I noticed that the door was opening unusually slowly. In came two women, carrying a small boy. My body stiffened. They placed the boy on a bed next to mine and walked away stealthily. Soon after they had disappeared, I crawled out of my bed to examine the boy.

It was Andreas! But what could have happened to him? I shook him very vigorously, but did not even stir.

Time passed very, very slowly. From time to time, a woman came to check on us. She would not speak a word even when I tried to attract her attention, by stirring in bed. When she left, I examined our den again and discovered a fairly large window at the back. There was a slit on the window. It was large enough to enable me to see that there was a thick bush behind the hut. I felt we could make our escape through this bush. I now woke Andreas up with greater determination and explained to him my plan. We checked again through a crack on the door shutter to see if any one was round. Then together we pulled down the window and jumped into the bush and surely to our freedom.

Miles deeper in the countryside church,
Shines the happy face of a bride
With grace, her place she takes beside her hubby
At the sweetheart table they sit at the reception
That memorable day!

Her dazzling smile hidden in a veil
Skillful dancing troupe hired, present the traditional dances
And the relatives to make their way to the couple
With banana fibre-wrapped gifts to offer
That memorable day!

Delightedly, the bride and the groom dance
To the melodies for their relatives and friends have come
Gracefully, she sways to the flow of the song
For she will be in their new home before long
That memorable day!

Delicious fare served to the guests and couple
