One Thursday afternoon, Mr Owundo was teaching us English. As we were listening to him attentively, Akello with whom I sat, saw a rope in our desk. She mistook it to be a snake. Without saying any word, she jumped through the window shouting "snake! snake!". All the thirty- nine pupils inside the classroom quickly followed her through the same window shouting for help.

To my surprise, the teacher opened the door and ran out making an alarm. I did not move out because I knew it was a rope, it belonged to me. I wanted to skip it with my friends during games time.

Within a short time, people in our school surrounded our classroom. The Head teacher had a stone, the cook had a mingling stick and a gatekeeper had a spear. They were all ready to kill the snake.

At first, they feared to enter. The brave cook entered first and others followed him. The gatekeeper pushed the desk using his spear and it turned upside down. Suddenly, a snake-like-thing was seen. He hit it thrice only to realize it was a rope. What a funny moment it was!
