Communities have different ways of sending and receiving messages . Most of the communities use drums. The way the drums were hit sent particular messages to people. For example, he drumming of a meeting was very different from the one to show that one had died.

These day, however, people use modern ways of sending messages from one place to another. People mat use the radio. They may use the television. These two ways are very important indeed. Information can easily be passed on in a very short time. Through these two media, important issues can be discussed through talk shows.

Last month, our school had a talk show over Nana FM. I was one of those who went to the studio. How happy I felt! The talk show was all about children having phones at school. I had a lot to discuss. "If a pupil goes to school with a phone, his concentration in class will be low," the head prefect of our school said. "It is not good just imagine the ring tone making noise during the lesson!" Having phones while at school will ensure our safety. In case of danger, we can easily communicate to our teachers, parents and police," I said.

Other pupils who were in the studio also had something to say. Those who did not go with us and those from other schools phoned in. It was wonderful to hear from them. In the end, the host thanked us for turning up and promised to invite us again.
