Martin is thirteen years old and he is in senior one. He is in Mount Bethel senior Secondary school in Jinja.

Last year, the P.7 teacher of English invited a police officer to talk to Martin's class about keeping away from danger. This was during a composition lesson when they were learning about children's rights. The officer said a lot and before he left, he gave the class a toll free number which they would use to call police in case of danger.

Two weeks later, Martin's mother's phone rang. The mother had gone to work in a market across the road. When Martin heard the phone, he picked it and put it in his pocket. He walked out of the house to take the phone to his mother. As he was about to cross the road, a black car stopped in front of him. A fat man with glasses got out. He pushed Martin into the car and they drove off before anybody could realize what was happening.

The car stopped in the middle of a forest. Martin was pulled out and was forced into a hut. The man shut the door and called somebody. He said that they had got the boy and then they drove away.

Martin prayed to God. Then as he was trying to scratch himself he touched his mother's phone which was in his pocket. Good enough he could still remember the toll free number the policeman had given the class. He called the number and told the person who received the call that he was in a forest. Thirty minutes later a search team was able to find Martin before he was harmed. The police was also able to arrest the kidnappers.
