I woke up early the next morning and got up but still I felt strange. I couldn't see straight. I looked at the trees and they moved. They started to spin. I sat down on the ground again and shut my eyes. The ground didn't move under me. I opened my eyes and looked around me. Suddenly, I saw a little parcel, picked it up and opened it. I found a bag of sweets and a Christmas cake inside the parcel. Then I remembered. "It is Christmas Day." I thought, "It's Christmas Day and I am in the jungle again. The plane crashed but I am still alive."

I thought about my home and parents.

"Dad is waiting for us at home," I thought. He has found a Christmas tree and he is sitting beside it. Perhaps he is talking to Grace, my baby sister, "Has Grace learnt some new words?" I asked myself, "Where is my mother?" I looked at the empty seat from the plane. Is she still alive? Is she near here? Perhaps she is hurt. I must find her.

Then I thought sadly, "Perhaps she died in the crash and I will never see her again." "What will my father do?" I thought of my father, my kind clever father.
