SECTION B

51. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

In Uganda, children are the majority. However, their rights have been abused in many ways like defilement, child sacrifice, corporal punishment, child labour among others.

On the 1st August 1997, the 1996 child statute was launched at the international conference centre Kampala. This law was to address the problems of children. According to this law, a child is a person under eighteen years of age.

This statute clearly indicates that Ugandan children like those of other countries have the same rights. Some of these rights are; a right to education, a right to fair judgement, a right to a name and identity, a right to health, children with disabilities have a right to be examined and get appropriate treatment.

Like any other person, children also have responsibilities such as cleaning the compound, house, washing, cooking and eating utensils, fetching water, and some garden work. But all these must be done in accordance with the child's age and ability. Children should also respect their elders. However, some children are badly mannered, they abuse their elders.

In conclusion, the government of Uganda should make effort to implement the children statute and punish whoever abuses children's rights.

54. Read the poem below carefully and in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

You create with your hands,
comfortable seats for us,
Both in the classroom and home,
We enjoy sound sleep,
Because of your effort.

When it rains
We are covered by the roof,
your excellent work,
Brings joy and happiness,
Sunshine and storm are not a worry.

The teachers too enjoy your services,
They comfortably mark books,
And prepare work for us,
Where would we be without you?
You simplify life for everyone.

With sand paper, you smooth wood,
You drill nails in the wood,
Fix the joints with wood glue
And with varnish our furniture shines,
Only to come up with good products

Akoth Ann
