Every animal has its natural home where it feeds, sleeps, breeds and raises its young ones. This is known as habitat. If the habitat is interfered with, the animals' life can never be the same again. Some animals have to migrate because their homes are no more.

Human activities like cutting down trees, destroying wetlands and polluting lakes have destroyed animal habitats. This has led to the disappearance of several animal species. This is called extinction.

Leopards and crocodiles are hunted for their skins, elephants for tusks while turtles for their soup. Many other animals are killed.

In Uganda, certain areas were marked for the protection of wild animals. They are game reserves and game parks. However, poachers are a threat to these areas. Some animals are smuggled out of country to be kept in zoos where they are put in confinements. They sometimes suffer and die of distress and loneliness. The young ones are the most affected since they miss their mothers.

WRITING LETTERS

The power of the pen on paper
Making people communicate freely
Through writing personal letters
To talk about personal issues.

When you put the pen on paper
You bring relatives and friends nearer
They know all that is happening to you
As you thank them for a special gift they sent you

Always use the pen and paper
To invite your nearest and dearest friends
To your birthday party or dinner
And have all of them celebrate with you

So the power of the pen on paper
Even makes friendship stronger
Raises love from better to best
For it makes us know that you care
